Background:

The Vote in NYC Jails Coalition is a group of legal service providers, government offices, and community-based organizations dedicated to delivering the full promise of enfranchisement to people currently incarcerated in jails. Members of the VJC routinely register people to vote in jails and provide them with information and education regarding their voting rights. The VJC also works with agencies to ensure robust registration, voter education, and absentee ballot delivery programs. Coalition members include: The Legal Aid Society, Latino Justice, Legal Action Center, The Bronx Defenders, National Action Network, VOCAL-NY, League of Women Voters, Sorensen Center, New York City Public Advocate's Office, PROP (Police Reform Organizing Project), NAACP Legal Defense Fund, Center for Race and Equity at NYU, Five Boro Defenders, NYC Civil Engagement Commission, Freedom Agenda.

The Coalition recently penned a sign-on letter demanding that the DOC and BOE invest and commit to making sure all people in NYC Jails have their ballots cast and counted. The letter called for:

- the Board of Elections must provide detailed anonymized feedback about their rejections of ballots coming from Rikers Island from the past two years and for future elections and implement measures to meaningfully mitigate the rejection rate;

- the Department of Correction must devote more resources around election season to support voters with registering to vote, requesting, receiving, and returning absentee ballots. This must include working with the Board of Elections to provide voters with the opportunity to cure their ballot before it is rejected;
- the Board of Elections must provide voters at Rikers with the same opportunity to vote in-person via the same mechanism the law provides for nursing home residents. This provision includes appointing election inspectors to preside over portable voting machines on-site at Rikers Island so that registered voters can cast their ballot directly with the Board of Elections, eliminating the need for a logistically complex curing process that the Board must undertake with regard to the absentee ballots of the detainees;
- finally, offering a voter education program and providing non-partisan resources on voting is critical to cultivating an informed and robust voting culture at NYC jails.
